STANDARDS & DISCIPLINE:
KEY CONCEPTS

Discipline is based on pride in the profession of arms, on meticulous attention to details, and on mutual respect and confidence. Discipline must be a habit so ingrained that it is stronger than the excitement of battle or the fear of death.

- General George S. Patton Jr.

ADRP 1

To be successful in all our missions, we must have spirited and dedicated professionals who are committed to high standards of excellence and bonded together in cohesive units and organizations—as a professional band of brothers and sisters.

ADRP 6-22

While our commanders and subordinate leaders are phenomenal warriors, they are unaccustomed to taking care of Soldiers in a garrison environment.

2010 Army Report, Health Promotion, Risk Reduction, and Suicide Prevention

Leaders who consistently enforce standards simultaneously instill discipline that will pay-off in critical situations.

ADRP 6-22

Our goal is to make discipline central to the Army's professional identity and its effectiveness. . . . Soldiers and Army Civilians show their commitment to the Army's guiding values and standards by willingly performing their duty at all times and subordinating their personal welfare to that of others. The constant practice of discipline makes it an inherent aspect of the Soldiers', or Army Civilians', beings.

Visit us at http://cape.army.mil